Omitted for peer review

Rooney, David. “‘He died like a dog:’ Trump, Conan the Dog and the Racialization of Animal Metaphor.” Manuscript intended for Rhetoric & Public Affairs. Intended submission: May 2023.

Muller, S.M, David Rooney and Zane McNeil. Cheeseburger Paradise: Alt-Right Food Rhetoric and the Meatification of Right-Wing Extremism. Manuscript intended for University of Mississippi Press. Intended submission date: Summer 2023. Two chapters of proposal drafted, another in progress.

Rooney, David. “‘Monstrous Mutations Deserve Beastly Names!’ Mythological Names, COVID-19 and the Disappearance of Grief.”

- Long term project on the rhetoric of naming in citizen-scientist alternative naming schemas for COVID-19 variants that intend to draw attention to disappeared disability/death through mythological names (e.g., Cerberus, Gryphon, Basilisk).

Rooney, David. “#NoBonesDay: On Debility and Animal Rendering in Pandemic Times.”

- Long term project on intersections between critical disability studies and animal studies, looking to critically examine universalized feelings of incapacity through digital platforms, particularly the viral #NoBonesDay phenomenon in 2021 and the Spoon Theory of disability.
